Film festival starts with eye-opener

THE Teme Valley Environment Group's free film festival kicks off with Al Gore's powerful eye-opening film An Inconvenient Truth.

It will be shown at The Knighton Hotel on Wednesday, June 13, at 7.30pm, followed by an opportunity to discuss the issues and their relevance locally with a panel of experts including local experts

Alice Goldstone and Gary Cowell.

Alice Goldstone, of the Teme Valley Environment group, said: "Even if you have seen Al Gore's film before, here is another chance to see one of the world's leading campaigners on Climate Change take us through the science and the impacts as he sees them and then ask local experts any questions that the film does not answer."

This is the first of a series of environmental films that will be shown throughout the summer leading up to Knighton and Presteigne's 50:50 event where people will be able to learn how to reduce the environmental impact of their energy, transport, food and waste – and of course save money!
